Dear Mr. Quatroche,

re: Fox's Ludicrous Discharge Plan 3/10

On Day 30 of my forced ECMCC detention (ie. 20250418), I again attempted to communicate with your Zone 5-2's Brenna Fox. This time, I questioned her interest in ^{rationale for} discharging me to a local shelter when:

- a) I am Canadian and was only visiting Buffalo, New York to do a follow-up piece on the vaping industry¹;
- b) I have zero interest in staying in New York and
- c) I was en route to interviewing a fellow researcher² in Chattanooga, Tennessee!

Her response — when I pointed out that her 20250325 BH-Treatment Plan simultaneously labelled me as homeless (see CS1 page 1.003 #10) while acknowledging my $2,000,000 permanent residence (see CS1 page 1.005 #45) — was "I don't know that you own that home".

So, I showed her³:

- a) my Bmo Home Equity Statement,
- b) my Ontario MPAC property tax bill and
- c) a copy of the deed

to which she replied "I won't confirm or deny anything".

Mr. Quatroche, check my passport and driver's licence. It's my property. What is wrong with your formerly-Canadian Nurse Practitioner? Did she lose her licence to practice in Canada first?? Or, is she part of the criminal network that I've been exposing via my corporate websites and my Twitter account @CaeJak⁴ at www.X.com? Care to comment?

¹ I broke the story ^{on the dangers of vaping} prior to Maclean's Magazine in July 2019. ² That is, Jack Pendergrass. See his tell-all Twitter account @NoogaJack re: corporate behemoth Maximus Inc.

⁵ P.S. One of my corporate sites expired yesterday because Brenna Fox refused to let me pay my bills.
